

Femili PNG's work on FSV featured by The Guardian

By Ashlee Betteridge

1 March 2016

The work of Femili PNG, which Devpolicy supports on a pro-bono basis, was featured by The Guardian newspaper this week, after reporter Helen Davidson visited Lae and met with staff and clients.

Femili PNG runs a Case Management Centre to assist survivors of family and sexual violence in Lae to access the services they need.

Two powerful stories in The Guardian feature Femili PNG's work with local safe houses and other partners and document the challenging experiences of clients, describing how case management has helped them as they try to make a fresh start against the odds.

Read the stories:

- Women seek islands of refuge in Papua New Guinea's sea of violence
- 'He might track me down and kill me': fleeing domestic violence in PNG

Read more about Femili PNG's work, and how you can support it, on its website.

About the author/s

Ashlee Betteridge

Ashlee Betteridge was the Manager of the Development Policy Centre until April 2021. She was previously a Research Officer at the centre from 2013-2017. A former journalist, she holds a Master of Public Policy (Development Policy) from ANU and has development experience in Indonesia and Timor-Leste. She now has her own consultancy, Better Things Consulting, and works across several large projects with managing contractors.

Link: <https://devpolicy.org/31855/>

Date downloaded: 28 March 2024

Australian
National University

The Devpolicy Blog is based at the Development Policy Centre, Crawford School of Public Policy, College of Asia and the Pacific, Australian National University.